FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Date July 26, 1971

1. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] was questioned concerning his knowledge of DANIEL ELLSBERG. He advised ELLSBERG first came to his attention during the summer of 1966 while ELLSBERG was in Vietnam. ELLSBERG sent back situation appraisals from South Vietnam to the Secretary of Defense, which appraisals [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] He advised he did not actually meet ELLSBERG until late 1967 or early 1968 when ELLSBERG was working with Dr. LESLIE GELB on the so-called MC NAMARA Study. He advised that he found ELLSBERG at that time to be a forceful advocate of a compromise solution for Vietnam. [REDACTED] stated he based this opinion of ELLSBERG on ELLSBERG's statements to him and what was told to him by Dr. GELB and LES HALPERIN. [REDACTED] advised he also had heard that ELLSBERG was talking up his position "on the Hill" in 1968.

When questioned about the article that appeared in "The New York Times" dated March 10, 1968, by NEIL SHEEHAN captioned, "US Undervalued Enemy's Strength Before Offensive", [REDACTED] advised that he was sure the material for this article was leaked to SHEEHAN because it contained exact figures taken from a table in another document [REDACTED] of which there are only six copies. [REDACTED] could not recall the title of this document. When questioned as to his suspicion that ELLSBERG was the source of this leak, [REDACTED] he had no information which would in any way substantiate this suspicion, but that this had been only his own feeling in the matter, in part based upon ELLSBERG's dovish attitude and his, ELLSBERG's, curiosity about knowing what is going on around him.

[REDACTED] stated he has never been close socially with ELLSBERG and could not, therefore, identify his close personal friends. He described ELLSBERG as being "smart, emotional moral within his own framework or points of reference, intense and persevering."

On 7/26/71 at New York, New York File # NY 65-25641
by SAS [REDACTED] JR. and [REDACTED] Date dictated 7/27/71

NY 65-25641

[redacted] mentioned that in the latter part of 1968, when [redacted] ELLSBERG but decided against it, inasmuch as he felt that ELLSBERG could not have been objective in his work and would have let his personal feelings on the Vietnam situation be reflected in the work.

When asked if he had any knowledge of any relationship between ELLSBERG and NEIL SHEEHAN, [redacted] stated he had heard that they had known each other over a long period of time, possibly going back to when they both attended Harvard University.

Concerning ELLSBERG's activities, [redacted] that he knew after ELLSBERG left the Department of Defense he went to work for Rand; that he divorced his wife; and that he has since married PATRICIA MARY [redacted]. He recalled being in the presence of ELLSBERG [redacted]. He noted one occasion which was about April, 1971. He could not recall [redacted] had been in connection with a [redacted]

[redacted] did ELLSBERG mention the MC NAMARA Study. It was evident from his comments that he was still opposed to the continued involvement of the United States in Vietnam.

In connection with the MC NAMARA Study, [redacted] volunteered that about two weeks prior to the publication of these papers in "The New York Times" he attended a function with numerous other people. He declined to furnish any information concerning this function. While at the function a friend approached him and told him that he had just received information from a "New York Times" employee, who was also attending the function, indicating that the "Times" was in possession of the bulk of the MC NAMARA Study; that they were preparing a story; and that DANIEL ELLSBERG had furnished the papers to NEIL SHEEHAN. [redacted] advised that he did not know the identity of the "Times" employee, but that he believed he was a reporter. He advised that his friend would most likely know the identity of this person. [redacted] declined to identify his friend by name. When asked whether or not he had furnished the information he had received to anyone in government, [redacted] stated he had not done so, and he further advised that he agreed with the position taken by the United States courts in connection with the publication of these documents by the "Times".

[redacted] when questioned about his association with NEIL SHEEHAN, noted that he has maintained a casual relationship with SHEEHAN since he left government, and cited as an example [redacted] When asked when he last had contact with SHEEHAN [redacted] advised that about one week prior to the publication of the MC NAMARA Study in the "Times", [redacted]

[redacted] As a result of this call, later the same week, still prior to the date of the "Times" publication of the so-called Pentagon Papers, [redacted]

[redacted] discussed the MC NAMARA Study. He did not ask any questions concerning the substance, but was interested in the form of the Study. He wanted to know whether or not it was an official Department of Defense document or a personal staff study done for the Secretary of Defense. [redacted] his view the MC NAMARA Study was not an official Department of Defense paper but a personal staff study. [redacted] him about the staff who prepared the Study with particular reference to their professional qualifications. In addition, he discussed the dissemination of the finished documents with particular reference made to the copy furnished to CLARK CLIFFORD. When asked about the number of copies disseminated, [redacted] that he believed a certain number, unrecalled, had been disseminated, and [redacted] advised that he did not agree with this number but that another number had actually been disseminated. [redacted] advised that he realized that [redacted]

[redacted] documents relating to the MC NAMARA Study were in the possession of Congressman PAUL MC CLOSKEY. [redacted] that the "Times" was in possession of these [redacted] and he made no mention of DANIEL ELLSBERG. [redacted] indicated that he mentioned to [redacted] that he knew that "The New York Times" was in possession of certain of these documents [redacted]

It is noted that [redacted] advised that he telephonically contacted [redacted] and that when making these calls he contacted these individuals through "The New York Times".

DANIEL ELLSBERG appeared as a guest on the DICK CAVETT Show, Channel 7, ABC, at 11:30 P.M. on 7/13/71. CAVETT introduced ELLSBERG as the man who gave the Pentagon Papers to "The New York Times". When questioned as to whether he, ELLSBERG, had any fears that the Times would not publish the papers, ELLSBERG stated he originally thought that publication of the papers would be unlikely and that he felt the Times would be unable to resist government pressure against publication. He noted that he had unsuccessfully tried for one and a half years to have the papers published through official channels. He admitted giving the Pentagon Papers to Senator FULLBRIGHT about October or November 1969.

When questioned as to whether or not he wished that he had released the papers earlier, ELLSBERG stated that he had given this matter much consideration. He did comment that he felt the papers have had greater impact now after Laos.

When questioned as to his decision to release the papers, he noted that many things led up to this decision, but that the main point relative to his decision occurred after reading a newspaper clipping in the "Los Angeles Times" concerning the release of eight Green Berets in connection with the murder of a double agent in South Vietnam. At this point he stated that he realized he was serving a government which would go to any lengths including the concealment of murder by lying.

CAVETT posed a question which he indicated originated with Senator GOLDWATER. He asked ELLSBERG, "Why did you decide to break the law?" ELLSBERG stated he was not aware as to whether or not he had broken the law and that this was something a jury would decide, and that if he was found to have broken the law, he would accept his punishment.

When questioned as to when a man has a right to break an oath, ELLSBERG replied by stating he was faced with a conflict of loyalties, loyalty to the security regulations of the Department of Defense and his superiors as opposed to his obligations to the American public, to the United States Constitution, and to the peoples of Vietnam, indicating one outweighed the other.

[REDACTED] that during the course of the year she purchases many travellers checks as she does not like to carry money. She stated that these checks are especially convenient in the light of the amount of travelling that she and her husband [REDACTED] do during the course of a year. She mentioned that she had recently come back from Mexico and that [REDACTED] are going to Japan in the near future where he is to attend a conference on fertility.

[REDACTED] that she had no specific recollection of the purchase of four $50 travellers checks during December 1968. She advised that she makes her purchases of such checks at the First National City Bank in the neighborhood where she herself maintains an account. When both she and her husband purchase such checks, she noted that they purchase them at his bank, the Chemical Bank, located near his office.

She advised that it is possible that she did make a purchase of four $50 travellers checks in December 1968 and that she may have given some or all of them to her daughter, SUSAN, as she frequently gives her three children gifts which at times include travellers checks.

She stated that she could furnish no additional information as she definitely has no recollection pertaining to these particular checks.

Attached is a proposed reply to the President's letter received 7/30/71 in which he requested the Director to send to Mr. Egil Krogh of the White House all information acquired to date, including interview reports, regarding 16 individuals involved in the leak of classified sensitive Government information, as well as a comprehensive background paper on Daniel Ellsberg, principal suspect in the leak of the "McNamara Report."

To comply with the President's request requires extensive review of a considerable amount of material we have developed since we entered this case 6/15/71 and we are working over this weekend to compile the necessary information. Immediately upon receipt of the President's letter, we instructed Boston, New York and Washington Field Offices to hand deliver interview reports and the very latest material on developments required to comply with the President's request. This has all been received over night.

We have had little or no information on six of these 16 individuals on whom we have been requested to compile data; therefore, Washington Field Office Agents were instructed to go to the Department of Defense last evening and find out how they tie into this case. In this connection, it is noted that the list of 16 individuals obviously was compiled at the White House based on names furnished by the Department of Defense. It is our intention to put everything we can into the letter to be sent to Mr. Krogh under date of Tuesday, 8/3/71. Meanwhile, we will institute investigation regarding those individuals on whom we have little or no information, looking toward their early interviews and the results will be forwarded to Mr. Krogh as soon as possible.

ACTION:

For approval there is attached a letter to the President to acknowledge his communication and advise him that we will furnish the material to Mr. Krogh expeditiously.

Dear Mr. Krogh:

By letter dated July 29, 1971, the President advised me that he had directed that you examine in depth the circumstances of the many recent disclosures of Top Secret and other sensitive material to the public. He asked that I forward to you all information acquired to date, including individual reports of interviews, with respect to 17 persons who were named in an attachment to his letter. One of these was Daniel Ellsberg, principal suspect in the disclosure of the "McNamara Study" to various newspapers. He asked that a comprehensive background paper on Ellsberg be sent to you.

Enclosed are 17 memoranda containing the information mentioned by the President. We have interviewed five of the individuals involved in connection with our investigation in the Ellsberg case. We also endeavored to interview a sixth one, Mr. Charles M. Cooke, but he declined to submit to interview by the FBI without the specific clearance of Deputy Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst. 100-4460-88

CHARLES M. COOKE Summary

No investigation of Cooke has been conducted by the Federal Bureau of Investigation; however, during the course of the investigation of Daniel Ellsberg, the following information regarding Cooke has been received:

On July 12, 1971, Mr. J. Fred Buzhardt, General Counsel, Department of Defense, informally furnished information recalled by him relative to possible leaks of classified information which had involved Ellsberg prior to Ellsberg's alleged leak of such information to "The New York Times."

Mr. Buzhardt recalled that in 1970, two articles had appeared in "The New York Times" under the by-line of Neil Sheehan, one of which was quite embarrassing. The embarrassing article had to do with a file on a Vietnamese official believed by Buzhardt to have been named Truc. The Department of Defense official recalled that during the course of an investigation into the possible leak of information in this matter, a related leak had been discovered which had been investigated by security personnel of the U. S. Department of State (USDS). Mr. Buzhardt recalled that one Charles Cooke had given documents to Ellsberg related to the Truc article and in the related investigation regarding the second leak, Cooke had permitted Ellsberg to come into the USDS and read classified files.

Mr. Buzhardt recalled, without reference to official files, that Cooke had been an Air Force major and had become acquainted with Ellsberg when they were both serving on the staff of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs. According

Thereafter, he went to work as Special Assistant to the then Undersecretary of State Elliot L. Richardson. According to Mr. Buzhardt, the USDS investigation in this matter had revealed that the information appearing in "The New York Times" articles had been traced back to Ellsberg and Cooke. He concluded his remarks regarding Cooke by stating that no action had been taken by USDS and when Mr. Richardson assumed his current post as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, he took Cooke with him where Cooke is now serving as Mr. Richardson's Special Assistant.

A review of the file of the Security Office, USDS, pertaining to Daniel Ellsberg disclosed that an investigation had been conducted by USDS on April 6, 1970, concerning a leak of information predicated on an article which appeared in a Washington, D. C., newspaper, "The Evening Star," on March 26, 1970, under the by-line of James Doyle.

The article in question commented upon a ruling by the South Vietnamese Supreme Court on March 25, 1970, that the arrest of South Vietnamese Assemblyman, Tran Ngoc Chau, had been carried out in an unconstitutional manner and noted that the ruling lent support to heavy pressure that had emanated from lower levels of the American Embassy and from higher levels of the United States Government to see that Chau was freed from a sentence of ten years at hard labor on charges of aiding the enemy.

During the course of the mentioned USDS investigation, information was furnished by Charles M. Cooke, then a Special Assistant, USDS, that he was acquainted with Ellsberg and noted that Ellsberg was (in 1970) working on a book concerning the lessons learned in Vietnam. Cooke described Ellsberg as being emotionally committed to Chau's cause and was of the opinion that Chau was not receiving fair or just treatment.

Charles M. Cooke

Cooke stated that on March 10 or 11, 1970, Ellsberg visited him in Washington, D. C., and gave him a memorandum on the Chau case. Ellsberg requested Cooke to submit the memorandum to the Undersecretary of State, which Cooke did. According to Cooke, he was instructed by the Undersecretary to obtain complete background information on the case and to brief Ellsberg on it.

Cooke went on to note that during the period from March 11 through March 13, 1970, he made the entire file available to Ellsberg. Ellsberg was in Cooke's office and studied the file thoroughly with full opportunity to make notes from the file. Cooke recalled that on March 24, 1970, Ellsberg returned to his office and reviewed the file again. According to Cooke, Ellsberg was the only person, other than USDS personnel, who had access to the file. Cooke assumed that Ellsberg had proper security clearance as he was employed by the Rand Corporation and was a consultant to the Department of Defense. Cooke had concluded with the statement that he believed that Ellsberg was also a consultant to the USDS.

On July 21, 1971, Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation contacted Mr. Cooke to arrange for an appointment for his interview regarding the foregoing information. Mr. Cooke stated that he had been working closely with Deputy Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst in connection with this matter and did not feel he should be interviewed by the FBI without Mr. Kleindienst's clearance.

On July 21, 1971, the FBI was advised by the Internal Security Division of the Department of Justice that Mr. Kleindienst and Mr. Robert C. Mardian, Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division, had talked with Secretary Elliot L. Richardson on July 16, 1971, and the latter had stated that he trusted Mr. Cooke completely and would agree to an interview with Mr. Cooke by Departmental attorneys. Secretary Richardson expressed the desire that Mr. Cooke not be interviewed by Special Agents of the FBI. The FBI was advised that this matter had been cleared with the White House and a decision was made to have Mr. Cooke interviewed by two attorneys of the Internal Security Division. Results of the interview were to be made available to the FBI. In view of the above, no further efforts have been made by the FBI to interview Cooke to resolve the matter relating to his possible connection with the release to Ellsberg of material relating to Tran Ngoc Chau. The results of the interview of Cooke by attorneys of the Internal Security Division of the Department of Justice have not, as of this date, been received by the FBI.

MELVIN GURTOV

On October 12, 1969, the "Washington Post," in its "Letters to the Editor" column, carried a letter signed by Gurtov, Daniel Ellsberg and four other members of the staff of the Rand Corporation at Santa Monica, California. The column was headed, "A Case Against Staying in Vietnam." The letter expressed the personal feelings of the Rand employees and noted that they believed that the United States should decide at that time to end its participations in the Vietnam war, completing the total withdrawal of United States forces from Vietnam within one year. The letter further noted that the importance of United States national interest in the future political complexion of South Vietnam had been greatly exaggerated as had the negative international impact of a unilateral United States military withdrawal.

The "Washington Post," on July 28, 1971, carried an article captioned, "17 On Hill Open Conference On Pentagon Study." The article noted that 17 antiwar Congressmen opened a three-day conference on July 27, 1971, on the implications of the Pentagon papers "for present and future policy." The article noted that Melvin Gurtov, described as a former Rand Corporation specialist, who worked on the section of the Pentagon papers dealing with 1945 through 1954, had charged in his appearance before the group that, "The truth about United States objectives and activities in Indochina is being hidden and distorted as much now as before...."

The mentioned article additionally noted that Gurtov had praised Central Intelligence Agency analysts, as distinct from agents, for their studies of the problems faced by the United States in Indochina. He said, however, that the recommendations of these analysts were ignored when they challenged the presumptions on which three Administrations have waged the Vietnam war.

It is noted that Daniel Ellsberg appeared before the same group of Congressmen, making a statement before that body on July 28, 1971.

On June 30, 1971, Gurtov was interviewed by Special Agents of the FBI. The results of the interview are set forth hereinafter.

Dr. Melvin Gurtov, a Social Scientist and member of the Research Staff, Rand Corporation, 1700 Main Street, Santa Monica, California, furnished the following information:

This is his last day to be employed at Rand Corporation and he is accepting a position at the University of California at Riverside, California, to teach Political Science. His present address is 548 Tahquitz Place, Pacific Palisades, California. He stated that he has been employed by Rand Corporation for nearly five years.

He advised that he had worked on the Task Force that originally produced the documents known as the "McNamara Study" in Washington D. C. He advised that he had met Daniel Ellsberg in Washington, D. C. as Ellsberg was also employed in this Task Force. He stated that when he, Gurtov, came to Santa Monica, California, he did not work directly with Daniel Ellsberg as he was working on another project. He stated that he did not involve himself socially with Ellsberg, although he did attend a party given by Daniel Ellsberg and his present wife shortly before they left to live in Massachusetts. He advised that he has not heard from Ellsberg since this time.

He stated that he has no knowledge concerning any copying, xeroxing, or any other information concerning any classified documents that Daniel Ellsberg had in his possession. He stated that during the period of time that he knew Ellsberg, Ellsberg gradually changed over a long period of time from a "hawk" to a position of a "dove" concerning his attitude toward the United States involvement in Vietnam. He was shocked when he learned that Ellsberg had given classified documents in his possession to the news media. He said that he believed that it was an act of conscience on Ellsberg's part and he does not believe that Ellsberg did this act to enrich himself personally or professionally. He believes that Ellsberg did it in good faith as a result of what Ellsberg believed. At no time did Ellsberg ever mention to him or anyone that he knows that he intended to release or use for his own purpose any

Sven Fritz Kraemer

Amron H. Katz, physicist and consultant to the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California, advised on July 27, 1971, when he was interviewed concerning Daniel Ellsberg, that Sven Kraemer, NSC, Washington, D. C., is an expert on Vietnam for the present Administration. Katz believed Kraemer to have met Ellsberg through his work on Vietnam. Katz offered no other information concerning association between Ellsberg and Kraemer.

The files of the FBI, including the files of the Identification Division, contain no additional pertinent information concerning Kraemer.

[REDACTED]
On June 15, 1971, [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] was interviewed by Special Agents of the FBI concerning his knowledge of the classified United States Department of Defense study of United States involvement in Vietnam from 1945 to 1967, portions of which study appeared in a series of articles in "The New York Times," starting on June 13, 1971.

[REDACTED] he had served as [REDACTED] Office of the Secretary of Defense Task Force which prepared this study, having been selected for this position on approximately [REDACTED]. He recalled that the original task force included Defense military personnel, but as the study broadened, non-Defense personnel, including personnel of the Rand Corporation, participated. [REDACTED] recalled that Richard Moorsteen of Rand Corporation had been one of the principal participants in the preparation of this Vietnam study.

[REDACTED] the Rand Corporation had received a set of volumes constituting the final report prepared by the task force and that complete access to the entire set had been granted to Dr. Richard Moorsteen and to Dr. Daniel Ellsberg, both of whom had worked on the task force staff, and who were then full-time employees of the Rand Corporation.

[REDACTED] Richard Moorsteen was, in his mind, a reliable individual who was nonpolitical in his ideology and incapable of a disclosure of the information in question.

On June 17, 1971, and on June 25, 1971, [REDACTED] was interviewed by Special Agents of the FBI, and results are set out hereinafter:

[REDACTED]

He advised that on May 20, 1970, Daniel Ellsberg [REDACTED] and asked him would he like the 18 volumes of the "McNamara Study". Ellsberg had these volumes in his hands and he put them on [REDACTED] desk. [REDACTED] told him, "I will have to check". Ellsberg left [REDACTED] [REDACTED] contacted Henry Rowen, President of Rand Corporation and advised him that Ellsberg [REDACTED] 18 copies of the "McNamara Study". Rowen [REDACTED] [REDACTED] to call Richard Best, Security Officer [REDACTED]. Best told [REDACTED] he would have the Top Secret Control Officer, Jan Butler, pick up the 18 volumes as soon as possible. Jan L. Butler came to his office with a cart and placed the 18 volumes on the cart. She gave him a receipt for the 18 volumes of the study. She has the receipt for these 18 volumes in her custody at the Top Secret Control Office at Rand Corporation at this time.

He stated that from the time that Ellsberg placed the volumes [REDACTED] until the time that he received the receipt from Jan L. Butler that he had turned these volumes in to her, could not have taken over one hour.

He did not work directly with Dan Ellsberg at Rand Corporation, however, their offices were across the hall from each other. He stated that he believes Dan Ellsberg gave him the 18 volumes because [REDACTED] was on the access list to the study. He added that he believes that this was the last day that Ellsberg was in his own office at Rand and he was cleaning out his office [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] his also could have been one of the reasons that Ellsberg gave them to him because he did not have time to give them to anyone else.

He said that it is possible that Ellsberg told him about the 18 volumes before that date but he does not actually remember if Ellsberg mentioned the fact or not. He knew that Rand Corporation had a full set of the "McNamara Study", however, he cannot say if it ever entered his mind concerning another set of 18 volumes. He stated that he saw volumes of the "McNamara Study" in Daniel Ellsberg's two drawer safe, however, he does not know if the volumes he saw in the safe were from the 18 volume set or the 47 volume set.

When Ellsberg gave [REDACTED] 18 volumes, Ellsberg did not give him a receipt for these volumes. He added that this was the reason [REDACTED] told Ellsberg he would have to check and that is why he immediately called Henry Rosen, who told him to immediately get the 18 volumes into the Top Security Control System by calling Richard Best.

[REDACTED] knew of the "McNamara Study" while he was a consultant with the CIA in Washington, D. C. and that is why it is extremely difficult for him to recall specifically whether he saw the 18 volume study or portions of the 47 volume study in Daniel Ellsberg's safe. He stated that unless there is a need to know concerning such a matter of this type that it was not discussed and he did not discuss any of the study with Daniel Ellsberg or anyone else at Rand Corporation until after he had signed out volumes of the study.

He also added that he did not ever have any access to Daniel Ellsberg's safe.

HENRY S. ROWEN

The files of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) reveal that Henry S. Rowen was a member on July 1, 1968, of the President's Commission on Income Maintenance Programs. The Commission was administered and financed by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. At the time that Mr. Rowen was appointed, he was President of the Rand Corporation and he was listed as a former Assistant Director, United States Bureau of the Budget.

The July 26, 1962, issue of "The New York Times" contained an article by Hanson W. Baldwin which revealed information taken from a National Intelligence Estimate (NIE). During the investigation by the FBI in 1962, Colonel John W. Dean, Jr., United States Air Force and Executive Officer, Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs (ISA), advised that Mr. Henry S. Rowen, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Planning and National Security Council, ISA, was among those at ISA who had attended a briefing relating to NIE material. Colonel Dean stated that Mr. Rowen had attended discussions relating to NIE in the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Mr. Rowen was among a large number of individuals interviewed by the FBI who could furnish no information pertinent to the investigation concerning the disclosure of information from the NIE which was the basis for the article in "The New York Times."

Dr. Leslie H. Gelb, former Chairman, Vietnam Task Force Study, advised Special Agents of the FBI that on completion of the study, it was decided by Dr. Gelb and others that among those who would be given complete access to an entire set of the study at the Rand Corporation, would be Henry Rowen, President of Rand Corporation. This decision was made for security reasons.

Lawrence J. Henderson, Assistant to the President, Rand Corporation, Washington, D. C., advised Special Agents of the FBI that Daniel Ellsberg, who was then employed by the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California, visited Washington, D. C., in 1969 and requested access to the study maintained at the Rand Corporation. Mr. Rowen was contacted and authorized removal by Ellsberg of 18 volumes of the study for transportation to California in connection with Ellsberg's Vietnam research. Mr. Rowen stated that he had conferred with two persons who could authorize the removal of the volumes by Ellsberg.

On June 17 and June 28, 1971, and on July 6 and July 12, 1971, Mr. Rowen was interviewed by Special Agents of the FBI, the results of which are set out hereinafter.

DANIEL ELLSBERG, who was employed as a Senior Researcher and Economist by the Rand Corporation, until April, 1970, was a close personal associate of ROWEN's and enjoyed the utmost confidence of highly placed Federal officials during the period of his employment.

ROWEN stated that ELLSBERG had an appointment as a Research Associate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), Cambridge, Massachusetts, which was to take effect in September, 1970. However, there was certain work that he was engaged in that prompted Rand Corporation to retain his services as a consultant until ELLSBERG reported to MIT. Mr. ROWEN stated that he has never discussed, with ELLSBERG, the possibility that ELLSBERG has reproduced any classified material that he was in possession of through his Rand employment. However, he related that during such employment, ELLSBERG was the custodian of a Top Secret report referred to as the "McNamara Study." Mr. ROWEN advised that he has no knowledge that ELLSBERG divulged any information appearing in this study to any unauthorized individuals.

Mr. ROWEN stated that his last contact with ELLSBERG occurred on December 9, 1970, when they had breakfast together in Cambridge, Massachusetts, where ROWEN was attending a function of the Harvard Business School.

ROWEN advised that he learned this week, through an employee of Rand Corporation, that ELLSBERG had been in telephonic contact with ELLSBERG's son, ROBERT, on June 14, 1971. ROWEN stated that he was receiving this information on a second or third hand basis, but it was his understanding that ELLSBERG had called his son's attention to an article that had just been published in the "New York Times," and had stated something to the effect that he, EISENBERG, had taken great risks and there was a possibility that he would be going to jail. On receipt of this information, ROSEN advised he placed a call to DAVID MAGUIRE, Deputy Secretary of Defense, in Washington, D. C., to relate this information and had been advised by MAGUIRE that he would handle the matter.

Henry S. Rosen, President, Rand Corporation, 1700 Main Street, Santa Monica, California, was contacted at his office. The identity of the interviewing agent was made known to him as was the nature of the inquiry. He recalled in about October 1969, Daniel Ellsberg and other Rand employees had prepared a letter to the "New York Times" setting forth their sentiments relative to the United States Government's position in the Vietnam war. Ellsberg and others who had prepared the letter visited his office announcing their intent to mail this communication to the "New York Times". Rosen pointed out to the group that this could cause considerable difficulty for the Rand Corporation which fact was recognized by Ellsberg and associates, however, they stated they felt it necessary in good conscience to make the statement although contending they did not want to hurt the Rand Corporation. They desired to indicate their association with Rand Corporation in the communication in order to lend credence to the statement. After deliberation, Rosen agreed they could make their association with Rand known, as he did not want to restrict or curtail their activities because of their employment by the Rand Corporation. He opined in retrospect that possibly it would have been better had they not identified themselves in the communication. He pointed out it was not a question of Ellsberg and his companions receiving approval or obtaining clearance for the sending of the communication to the "New York Times" as it was to determine that if they sent the letter and made their association with Rand known would they remain in the employ of Rand or would they be fired.

Rosen said that briefly following this confrontation by Ellsberg and the others who wrote the "New York Times" he had encouraged four other Rand employees to write, in rebuttal, the opposite point of view defending the position of the United States.

Rosen further related that Ellsberg did not seek clearance from him to participate in anti-Vietnam war activities at the time of his termination of employment or anytime prior thereto. Ellsberg had given him no indication of the part he was to play in anti-war activities on separation from employment at Rand Corporation.

Rowen stated Ellsberg had been encouraged for sometime prior to the termination of his employment at Rand to seek employment elsewhere, and Ellsberg had indicated that an appointment at Massachusetts Institute of Technology was available to him. Ellsberg had advised Rowen that he felt inhibited by continuing employment at the Rand Corporation as he did not feel free to express his opinions on Vietnam and did not want to further embarrass the Rand Corporation. Rowen recalled that Ellsberg had stopped him in the hall at the Rand Corporation immediately following the adjournment of a Board of Directors meeting in April 1960, and again indicated to him he was concerned regarding his position at Rand and felt it would be better to leave the Rand Corporation. This was agreed between Ellsberg and Rowen. Ellsberg agreed to stay on as a consultant for a period of approximately two months to finish a manuscript on which he had been working which was near completion.

Rowen suggested during the interview that J. Richard Goldstein, Senior Vice President, Rand Corporation, sit in on the conversation inasmuch as he was present during the confrontation with Ellsberg and the other Rand employees at the time they desired to forward the communication to the "New York Times" in October 1969. Goldstein was present during a portion of this interview and indicated he was in complete accord with the comments of Mr. Rowen.

DANIEL ELLSBERG .

On June 13, 1971, "The New York Times" published the first of a series of articles purporting to report on a history of the United States decision-making process concerning Vietnam policies for the period 1945 to 1967. The articles continued through June 15, 1971. "The New York Times" claimed that the articles were based on a study later identified as a 47-volume history entitled "United States - Vietnam Relations During the Period 1945 - 1967," commonly referred to as the "McNamara Study," of which "The New York Times" had a copy. A comparison of the information set forth in "The New York Times" articles has been made by the National Security Agency and a conclusion reached that 75 to 80 percent of the information contained in the articles came from two black notebooks known as the "Simons Papers." These were study papers to which Ellsberg had access.

Subsequent to the publication of the articles by "The New York Times," additional articles allegedly based on the "McNamara Study" appeared in the "Washington Post," the "Boston Globe," the "Christian Science Monitor," the "Los Angeles Times," the "Chicago Sun Times," the "Philadelphia Inquirer," the "St. Louis Post Dispatch" and the "Miami Herald." A determination is currently being made by the National Security Agency as to the source of the original information in these articles, as well as whether or not the data was classified.

On June 15, 1971, the Attorney General requested the FBI to conduct all necessary investigation into the matter relating to the publication of classified information by "The New York Times." Our continuing investigation into this matter has, from its inception, buttressed by Ellsberg's admissions, identified Daniel Ellsberg, Senior Research Associate, Center of International Studies, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts, as the principal suspect in connection with the release of the material to the press. He was engaged in the preparation of and had access to the "McNamara Study"; had parts of the study in his possession for an extended period; reproduced classified documents in Los Angeles, California; and evidence strongly indicates he made copies of documents from the study available to representatives of "The New York Times" in March, 1971, for reproduction.

PERSONAL BACKGROUND

Birth and Education

Daniel Ellsberg was born April 7, 1931, in Chicago, Illinois, and received his elementary and high school education in Michigan. Following graduation from Cranbrook School, Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, in 1948, Ellsberg attended Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts. He was graduated summa cum laude from that University in 1952, receiving an A.B. degree. From 1952 to 1953, he did graduate work in the field of economics at Cambridge University, Cambridge, England. In the 1953-1954 academic year he was a teaching fellow at Harvard and at the end of that period received a Masters degree in the field of economics. Following service in the United States Marine Corps, 1954-1957, Ellsberg returned to Harvard to teach and study for the 1957-1958 academic year as a member of the Society of Fellows. In 1962, Ellsberg received his Ph.D. degree from Harvard, writing a thesis, "Risk, Ambiguity, and Decision."

Military Service

On April 16, 1954, Ellsberg entered the United States Marine Corps and in July, 1954, received his commission as a second lieutenant after completion of the officers candidate program. Following an assignment to the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean Sea in 1956, he was relieved from active duty on February 3, 1957, remaining a member of the Inactive Reserve until 1963. Ellsberg was the subject of an investigation concerning a letter found in his desk which revealed the future mission that in August, 1956, took him and his Marine Corps unit to the Mediterranean Sea for standby duty with other North Atlantic Treaty Organization military forces. Ellsberg advised investigators that he had written the letter but that similar information as to the mission had been printed in newspapers and mentioned by other unit members in correspondence to parents and friends. Ellsberg was characterized by several fellow officers at that time as being absent-minded and lacking common sense, although they did not believe that he would deliberately divulge classified information.

Relatives

Daniel Ellsberg's father, Harry Ellsberg, is a retired structural engineer who resides in Huntington Woods, Michigan. Ellsberg's mother, Adele Charsky Ellsberg, who was the second wife of his father, died as the result of an automobile accident in the mid-1940s. A brother, Harry Dill Ellsberg, associated with the insurance business, resides in the New York City area. In 1941, this brother, 11 years older than Daniel, appealed a 1-A Selective Service classification but shortly thereafter withdrew his claim to be a conscientious objector. The brother has openly supported Daniel in his aims and actions to publicize the so-called "McNamara Study" and to oppose United States involvement in Vietnam. Daniel Ellsberg has an uncle, Edward Ellsberg, a retired United States Navy Admiral who served in World Wars I and II.

Marriages

On February 10, 1961, Daniel Ellsberg was married to Carol Cummings. Her father is retired United States Marine Corps Brigadier General Gale T. Cummings, now residing in Colorado, where he has been an attorney. Carol Ellsberg filed for divorce on March 22, 1965, on charges of extreme cruelty, and a final judgment of divorce was granted in Los Angeles, California, on June 17, 1966. The two children born of that marriage, Robert Boyd Ellsberg, 15, and Mary Carol Ellsberg, 13, reside with their mother in Los Angeles and have visited with their father occasionally in California and Massachusetts in recent years.

Ellsberg's second and current wife is Patricia Valerie Marx to whom he was married on August 8, 1970. She is the daughter of Louis Marx, president of Louis Marx and Company, New York City, a toy manufacturing concern. Patricia Marx, a graduate of Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Massachusetts, formerly conducted interview programs for radio and television stations in New York City.

Morals

Daniel Ellsberg has apparently had numerous girl friends during and following his first marriage, as well as since his second marriage. [REDACTED]

Several past professional and social acquaintances have advised that Ellsberg was preoccupied with sex. He reportedly maintained nude photographs of girl friends in his safe at the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California, in the late 1960s. He has undergone psychoanalysis for several years, spending as much as $6,000 a year [REDACTED]

Employment

Ellsberg was associated with the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California, from 1958 to 1964 in the economics field. From October 13, 1964, to September, 1965, he was an assistant to the late John McNaughton, Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs, at the Pentagon. During that period, Secretary McNaughton became disenchanted with Ellsberg and had him moved into a small office nearby.

On September 26, 1965, Ellsberg began a tour of duty with the United States Department of State, serving in Saigon as an International Relations Officer. He was on the staff of retired Major General Edward Lansdale who was a special assistant to the United States Ambassador for implementation of the pacification program. Ellsberg made studies of the results of pacification efforts. In 1966, this program was reorganized and Ellsberg was assigned to work under the then Deputy United States Ambassador, William Porter. In 1967, Ellsberg contracted hepatitis and following hospitalization in South Vietnam and Thailand returned to the United States. He resigned from the Department of State in July, 1967, for personal reasons. He held a top secret clearance in connection with the above employment.

He joined the staff of Rand Corporation at Santa Monica, California, on July 28, 1967, and was granted a top secret clearance. He served as a senior researcher and economist until May 20, 1970. During the period of his employment at the Rand Corporation, he was involved in the preparation of studies related to United States involvement in Vietnam, including a portion of the so-called "McNamara Study." He also participated in 1969 in the preparation of National Security Council Study Memorandum Number One.

In 1968, 1969 and 1970, he presented his views doubting the wisdom of United States involvement in South Vietnam before several conferences sponsored by academic societies, as well as in writings that were prepared corollary to his Rand Corporation studies and made public following clearance by Rand.

In October, 1969, Ellsberg with several other Rand Corporation employees prepared and signed a letter opposing the war in Vietnam. They proposed to send it to several newspapers for publication and discussed the matter with Henry S. Rowen, the President of Rand Corporation. Rowen agreed that they could make known their association with the Rand Corporation in the letter inasmuch as he did not want to restrict their activities on grounds of their employment with the Rand Corporation. The letter was later printed in "The New York Times" of October 9, 1969, and "The Washington Post" of October 12, 1969.

Ellsberg has stated that he left the Rand Corporation because of a desire for greater freedom to express opposition to the war in Vietnam. He was retained as a consultant until September, 1970.

Since May, 1970, he has been employed as a research associate at the Center of International Studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Massachusetts.

When Ellsberg entered on duty with the Rand Corporation in July, 1967, he signed an agreement to protect classified defense information as well as to sign a "Security Termination Statement" indicating that he had returned all classified material prior to a time of termination of employment. The Rand Corporation has advised that Ellsberg failed to sign such a statement when he left in May, 1970, and, as a result, he was sent copies of the "Security Termination Statement" on November 20, 1970; February 2, 1971; and March 30, 1971. He was requested by each accompanying letter to sign and return the statement. He has not complied with these requests.

THE CRIMINAL ACT

Ellsberg's Possession of the "McNamara Study"

While Ellsberg was employed by the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California, the entire 47-volume "McNamara Study" was available to him. Rand Corporation records indicate that 27 volumes were charged out by Ellsberg between October 23, 1969, and April 10, 1970. At the time Ellsberg terminated employment with Rand during May, 1970, he turned in to Rand 18 volumes of a preliminary draft of the "McNamara Study," which he was not known previously to have had.

With respect to the 18 volumes, Ellsberg obtained ten of them in March, 1969, and eight in August, 1969, at the Rand Corporation, Washington, D. C., for delivery to the Rand Corporation, Santa Monica, California. When furnished these volumes for delivery, he was given memoranda authorizing him to act as a courier and charging him with the security of the information. The memoranda specifically instructed Ellsberg that upon delivery of the documents, the memoranda designating him as a courier and charging him with the security of the information were to be returned to the Washington, D. C., office of Rand. Neither of the memoranda has ever been returned to Rand, nor were the receipts which he executed for the volumes returned.

Reproduction of Classified Documents by Ellsberg

In approximately October, 1969, Daniel Ellsberg, on several occasions, together with other individuals, utilized Xerox equipment at a firm operated by one Lynda Sinay in Los Angeles, California, to reproduce classified documents. On one or more of the occasions, the other individuals who were present and reportedly assisted in some fashion in the duplicating were Lynda Sinay; Ellsberg's two children, Robert and Mary; Anthony Russo, a friend of Ellsberg and former employee of the Rand Corporation; an unidentified female named Kimberly who may be identical with Judith Kimberly Rosenberg, currently residing in Canada; and Vu Van Thai, a former associate and fellow employee of Ellsberg at the Rand Corporation in California, currently employed by the United Nations Secretariat, Dakar, Senegal.

Daniel Ellsberg

The Furnishing of or Attempts to Furnish Documents to Government Officials by Ellsberg

Subsequent to the duplicating of documents in about October, 1969, Ellsberg is alleged to have stated that he intended to furnish the copies of the documents to Senator J. William Fulbright and to former Senator Charles E. Goodell.

In about December, 1970, or January, 1971, Ellsberg attempted to furnish unidentified documents to Senator George S. McGovern. The "Washington Post" issue of July 31, 1971, set forth an article entitled "McGovern Suggested Disclosure by Ellsberg." This article set forth information attributed to the Sunday newspaper supplement "Parade," which identified Senator McGovern as having stated that he suggested to Daniel Ellsberg that Ellsberg make the Pentagon papers available to a respectable newspaper. In the August 1, 1971, edition of the "Washington Post," Senator McGovern's press secretary was reported to have denied this.

In the Spring of 1971, Ellsberg furnished a document to Senator Charles McC. Mathias, Jr. This document has been identified as a copy of the National Security Council Study Memorandum Number One, dated 1969, which set forth background information on Vietnam. Ellsberg had access to this document in about April, 1969, when he assisted in analyzing the results of a questionnaire disseminated to various Government agencies. These results were incorporated into the National Security Council Memorandum. At that time, although Ellsberg was still employed by the Rand Corporation, he was working for Morton Halperin, who, in turn, was working for Dr. Henry A. Kissinger. Parts of this memorandum are classified "Confidential" and parts are classified "Secret."

Representative Paul N. McCloskey, Jr., is in possession of documents which he has publicly admitted were given to him by Daniel Ellsberg. Ellsberg and McCloskey are known to have been in personal contact during May, 1971.

Reproduction of Documents by Cornelius Mahoney Sheehan, Also Known as Neil Sheehan, and His Wife, Susan Sheehan

"The New York Times" articles pertaining to this investigation carried the by-line of Neil Sheehan, a correspondent for "The New York Times." Investigation has indicated that

Daniel Ellsberg

Neil Sheehan, using the alias "Samuel Johnson," resided at the Treadway Motor House, Cambridge, Massachusetts, during the periods March 16 to March 18, 1971; March 20 to March 23, 1971; and April 7 to April 8, 1971. Investigation has further indicated that Sheehan's wife, Susan, resided at the Continental Hotel, Cambridge, Massachusetts, during the period March 21 to March 23, 1971, under the name "Susan Dowling." During the period March 21 through March 23, 1971, the Sheehans arranged for and participated in extensive copying of what appeared to be Xerox copies of documents. The duplicating occurred at two firms in Massachusetts, one in Bedford and the other in Boston. William Kovach, a reporter for "The New York Times," is possibly identical with an individual who, on March 21, 1971, arranged by telephone for Susan Sheehan to make contact with one of the duplicating firms.

Four blurred Xerox copies that were discarded while the duplicating was in progress at one of the firms have been obtained by the FBI. The National Security Agency has advised that these discarded copies are reproductions of pages appearing in the 47-volume "McNamara Study."

A check has been made of telephone calls charged against the rooms occupied, respectively, by Neil Sheehan at the Treadway Motor House and by Susan Sheehan at the Continental Hotel. Interviews have also been conducted with taxicab drivers who transported individuals between these two points as well as between the duplicating firms and an apartment in Cambridge, Massachusetts, at 4 Trowbridge Place, which is rented by Spencer B. Marx, half-brother of Ellsberg's wife, Patricia. There were other telephone calls and taxi service involving these same points and 10 Hilliard Street, Cambridge, where Ellsberg has his residence. A study of the results of these inquiries has indicated that Susan and Neil Sheehan participated personally in the duplicating of a large number of documents. They possibly utilized the apartment of Spencer B. Marx as a temporary repository for the documents being copied and the copies made. Investigation has also indicated that they were working under some time element, since Neil Sheehan expressed, in the presence of employees at one of the duplicating firms, concern over not getting the job completed in time.

Daniel Ellsberg

Our investigation has suggested the possibility that Neil Sheehan did not realize the extent of the job being undertaken at the outset of the duplicating process. In this connection, during the period March 21 to March 23, 1971, he received a total of $1,000 from "The New York Times" over Western Union facilities. He arranged for the duplication of 8,929 copies of documents.

One phase of the investigation which is as yet unresolved relates to a total of six telephone calls placed from "Samuel Johnson's" room at the Treadway Motor House after 7 p.m. on Sunday, March 21, 1971, to locksmith firms. Interviews of the owners or operators of these firms have revealed that they were not open at the times the calls were placed and apparently the calls were not completed. In an effort to establish the reason for Sheehan's efforts in attempting to contact locksmiths in the Cambridge area, interviews have been conducted with the owners or operators of 31 additional such establishments without developing any significant information.

Our investigation has shown that the reproduction of documents by the Sheehans was completed at 5:45 a.m. on March 23, 1971. At 7:10 a.m. on that same day, a taxicab driver called at the residence of Daniel Ellsberg and transported a male passenger to Logan International Airport, Boston, Massachusetts. The taxicab driver was unable to say whether a photograph of Ellsberg resembled his passenger. We have established through investigation that Ellsberg and his wife departed from New York City for Trinidad by air at 9:15 on the morning of March 23, 1971.

On March 11, 1971, or March 12, 1971, [REDACTED] the apartment house where Spencer Marx' apartment is located was personally asked by Spencer Marx to make periodic checks of the apartment. On March 14, 1971, he was telephonically instructed by Mrs. Louis Marx, mother of Spencer Marx, to hold in abeyance the prior request of Spencer Marx. This apartment is protected by a burglar alarm system which can be turned off with a key at the entrance door. This suggests the possibility that Neil Sheehan may have had access to a key to this system for duplication purposes and, if so, this may account for the calls to the locksmiths described above.

Preparation of "The New York Times" Articles

The records of the New York Hilton Hotel revealed that on April 21, 1971, [REDACTED] of "The New York Times," made a reservation for the following day for a three-room suite. The suite was occupied on April 22, 1971, by Gerald Gold of "The New York Times." During the period of April 27, 1971, to June 11, 1971, additional rooms were rented, making a total of ten. On June 17, 1971, Gold notified the hotel that he no longer needed four of the ten rooms and he, thereafter, released others. As of July 1, 1971, Gold occupied a single room. Records regarding food and laundry charges indicated Fox Butterfield, E. W. Kenworthy and Hedrick Smith, all of whom are employees of "The New York Times," resided in the rooms. Bills for the rooms were sent to "The New York Times" and estimated charges to July 7, 1971, were $25,000.

In the publication, "Times Talk," volume 23, number 3 dated June, 1971, which is published by "The New York Times," the preparation of "The New York Times" release of material, based on the "McNamara Study," was described as a "hush-hush project of record magnitude." The article stated that Gerald Gold was assigned to work on a "big project" with Neil Sheehan and that Gold checked into a two-room suite in the Jefferson Hotel in Washington, D. C., on April 5, 1971, where he met with Sheehan. For two weeks they reportedly worked out the dimensions of the project and assembled a library of books and periodicals on Indochina and Vietnam to guide them in determining what in the "Pentagon History" was public knowledge and what was not. After two weeks in Washington, Sheehan and Gold briefed the top management of "The New York Times" and the project was moved to New York City where, on April 22, 1971, Sheehan and Gold moved into the Hilton Hotel. Among employees of "The New York Times" identified in the article as assisting in the project were Butterfield, Kenworthy and Smith.

ADMISSIONS BY DANIEL ELLSBERG
RELATING TO DISCLOSURE OF THE "MC NAMARA STUDY"

The following information has been developed concerning admissions made by Daniel Ellsberg with relation to the "McNamara Study" and the unauthorized disclosure of this material.

Daniel Ellsberg

On the morning of June 28, 1971, Ellsberg appeared at the United States Court House, Boston, Massachusetts, at which time he was briefly questioned by representatives of the press, radio and television. In response to questions put to him, Ellsberg stated that during the Fall of 1969 he had gone to the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in an effort to tell him about information which was then known only to Ellsberg and a few others and was not public. According to Ellsberg, he got nowhere on this occasion.

Ellsberg also stated that he had made the decision to give this information to the newspapers and he was solely responsible for this action. He said he knew he was violating security regulations in doing so, but that he had taken this action on his own initiative and was prepared to take the consequences.

Following his arrest in Boston, Massachusetts, on June 28, 1971, by Agents of the FBI, based on charges that Ellsberg had violated the Espionage Statutes, he held a lengthy press conference at the Sheraton Commander Hotel, Cambridge, Massachusetts, on July 1, 1971. His remarks were addressed to the subject of the McNamara Study and there follow pertinent quotations from comments made by Ellsberg on this occasion:

"...the press and I...share the responsibility for the decision to bring this news...to the American public. I couldn't have done it by myself...."

"There were, in fact, several volumes dealing with negotiations...nevertheless, I did not want to contribute to even the possibility that I would get in the way of negotiations like that; therefore, I did exercise the judgment of giving those materials to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which I felt had quite an overriding need to know and not to any newspapers."

"I released these Studies because I felt that the concealment of this information for twenty-five years has now led to the deaths of 50,000 Americans...."

"...a decision that I made some two years ago that this information should be available to Congress...."

"I am not going to name any individual paper; I gave them to the papers of this country."

Daniel Ellsberg

"To my knowledge, all of them...." (Response to question as to whether he was the source of the McNamara Study documents published in all the newspapers or only certain ones.)

"I must say I exercised certain personal tastes. I was anxious to give it to newspapers that I thought had told me the truth in the past...."

On the following day, July 2, 1971, Ellsberg appeared as a guest on "The Today Show," a television production of the National Broadcasting Company (NBC). His statements on this show again concerned, for the most part, the McNamara Study and its unauthorized disclosure to the press. In this connection, Ellsberg commented that he regretted there had been a time lag of about two years from the time he decided to make these papers public until the time they actually became public. He said he expected Senator Fulbright to do more with them than he did and that he had hoped there would be hearings in this connection. He said he finally decided he would have to go further when the actions he took at that time failed to get the information to Congress or the public.

On July 9, 1971, Daniel Ellsberg was interviewed by reporters at the National Press Club, Washington, D. C. In reporting this event, the "Washington Post," in its issue of July 10, 1971, quoted Ellsberg as stating that he was "the man who made available the secret history of the Vietnam war to reporters."

Several days later, on July 13, 1971, Daniel Ellsberg appeared as a guest on "The Dick Cavett Show," a television production of the American Broadcasting Company (ABC). The interview again related to the McNamara Study and on this occasion Ellsberg divulged the fact that in 1969 he had decided to reveal this information as the result of an incident involving eight Green Berets who were charged with assassinating an alleged Vietnamese agent. According to Ellsberg, the then Secretary of the Army dropped charges against the eight for security reasons. Ellsberg said he knew, however, the reason announced by the Secretary in dropping these charges was a lie and that the White House had actually made this decision. He stated that it was at this point in time he decided he could no longer be part of a system which would conceal murder by lying and soon after decided to reveal the information comprising the McNamara Study.

PROSECUTIVE ACTION

On June 21, 1971, a Federal Grand Jury at Los Angeles, California, commenced hearing testimony regarding the disclosure of the "McNamara Study," with subsequent appearances before that body by Mrs. Carol Ellsberg, officials and employees of the Rand Corporation, Lynda R. Sinay and Anthony Joseph Russo, Jr.

On June 25, 1971, the Deputy Chief of the Criminal Section of the Internal Security Division, Department of Justice, authorized filing of a complaint charging Ellsberg with violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 793 (e). The complaint alleged that on or about October, 1969, within the Central District of California, Daniel Ellsberg, having unauthorized possession of, access to, and control over copies of certain documents and writings related to the national defense, to wit: separately bound volumes of sets consisting of 47 and 18 volumes, respectively, of Xerox copies of a study of United States - Vietnam relations for the period of 1945 to 1967, consisting of descriptive text, cablegrams, memoranda, decision papers and other internal executive branch documents, all but one of which documents were classified "Top Secret"; the remaining document being classified "Confidential"; did willfully and unlawfully retain the same and fail to deliver them to the officer or employee of the United States entitled to receive them, in violation of Title 18, Section 793 (e), United States Code.

The complaint was filed before the United States Magistrate at Los Angeles on June 25, 1971, by a Special Agent of the FBI and an arrest warrant was issued. Bond was recommended in the amount of $100,000.

On June 28, 1971, the Grand Jury at Los Angeles returned a two count indictment charging Ellsberg as follows: Count one charges that Daniel Ellsberg in violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 793 (e), to wit: on various dates within the period from in or about September, 1969, to in or about October, 1969, the exact dates being to the Grand Jury unknown, within the Central District of California, Daniel Ellsberg, having unauthorized possession of, access to, and control over copies of certain documents and writings relating to the national defense, which documents and writings were originally contained in separately bound volumes of sets consisting of 47 and 18 volumes, respectively, of Xerox copies of a study entitled "United States - Vietnam Relations, 1945 to 1967," consisting of descriptive text, cablegrams, memoranda, decision papers, and other internal executive branch documents, all but one of which documents were classified "Top Secret," the remaining document being classified "Confidential"; did willfully, knowingly and unlawfully retain the same and fail to deliver them to the officer or employee of the United States entitled to receive them.

Count two charges violation of Title 18, United States Code, Section 841, in that on various dates within the period from in or about September, 1969, to in or about October, 1969, the exact dates being to the Grand Jury unknown, within the Central District of California, Daniel Ellsberg did willfully, knowingly and unlawfully convert to his own use, copies of certain documents and writings, which documents and writings were originally contained in separately bound volumes of sets consisting of 47 and 18 volumes, respectively, of Xerox copies of a study entitled "United States - Vietnam Relations, 1945 to 1967," consisting of descriptive text, cablegrams, memoranda, decision papers and other internal executive branch documents, the aforesaid documents and writings being things of value to the United States, having a value in excess of $100.

On June 28, 1971, Daniel Ellsberg, accompanied by his wife, Patricia, arrived at the United States Court House and Post Office Building, Boston, Massachusetts, where, with his attorneys, Leonard Boudin and Charles R. Nesson, he surrendered himself to the United States Attorney and was placed under arrest by Special Agents of the FBI. He was processed by the United States Marshal's Office and immediately taken before United States Magistrate Peter W. Princi. During the ensuing hearing, arguments were advanced by Ellsberg's attorneys for reduction of the $100,000 bail recommended and Ellsberg made a personal appeal to the Magistrate for his release on his own recognizance. Magistrate Princi set Ellsberg's release on $50,000 bond without surety and, as a condition precedent to his release, Ellsberg was requested to turn in his current passport which he did in open court to United States Attorney Herbert F. Travers, Jr. Under the provisions of his bond Ellsberg is restricted to the continental limits of the United States. A removal hearing was tentatively scheduled for July 15, 1971.

Daniel Ellsberg

During the course of subsequent written and oral arguments presented by Ellsberg's attorneys and by the United States Government, it was contended that the charges against Ellsberg had been based on the Government's use of illegal electronic overhearings of telephone conversations. Counterarguments by the Government in summary stated that the removal hearing was not the correct procedural stage for consideration of electronic overhearings as an element to the validity of the charges, pointing out that such consideration should be given in pretrial hearings in the District to which Ellsberg should be removed. Magistrate Princi has indicated that he will rule on these arguments and removal sometime during the period of August 2-6, 1971.

TRANSITION FROM "HAWK" TO "DOVE"

Information has been developed that during the time Daniel Ellsberg attended graduate school at Harvard University during 1957 and 1958, he was convinced that United States policies toward Southeast Asia were correct and proper. He likewise felt that actions taken to implement these policies were bound to be successful because they were based on correct policies. Ellsberg believed that United States policies in Southeast Asia were the only rational ones to follow with regard to the international problems presented by the political and military situation existing in that area.

[redacted] at that time, [redacted] advised that Ellsberg believed in rationality above all else and was firmly convinced any national policies which were rational must be correct. [redacted] who is currently [redacted] located on [redacted] Fort Lauderdale, Florida, considered Ellsberg's release of the "McNamara Study" irrational and definitely out of character for the Ellsberg he had previously known. He had no explanation for the radical change in attitude on the part of Ellsberg.

It is noted that an associate of Ellsberg at Rand Corporation, who had first met him in 1958, described Ellsberg as a person with a propensity for self-dramatization and stated Ellsberg's pattern of behavior had been very devious and unscrupulous. Ellsberg was stated to be a person who has no sense of personal obligation.

During 1964 and 1965, Ellsberg participated in seminars at the Department of Defense and was considered to be an articulate individual with definite views of his own and unusual slants on problems encountered. During a 1965 seminar, he eloquently supported the suggestion of Major General Edward G. Lansdale, United States Air Force (retired) regarding the need for a "political base" in South Vietnam. General Lansdale has advised that Ellsberg subsequently joined the General's staff in South Vietnam doing staff studies on the pacification campaign. His job related to the counterinsurgency program and Ellsberg was completely in favor of United States support to South Vietnam in the war effort. At that time there reportedly were no questions in Ellsberg's mind about whether the United States should be in South Vietnam.

During 1966, while in South Vietnam, Ellsberg volunteered for two weeks of active duty with the United States Marine Corps in which he held a reserve commission. General Lansdale advised that during this two weeks' tour, Ellsberg engaged in combat missions.

General Lansdale stated that the first indication of a change in attitude by Ellsberg occurred when he informed General Lansdale that, along with other Rand Corporation employees, he, Ellsberg, was submitting a letter to "The New York Times" and other newspapers speaking out against United States policy in Vietnam. This occurred in October, 1969.

Subsequent to Ellsberg's return to the United States in 1967, he joined the Vietnam Task Force Study Group. It was observed that he was not productive and spent the major portion of his time reading material available to the study group. It was further mentioned that Ellsberg, at that time, appeared tired and disturbed and it was felt this was perhaps due to the fact he was convalescing from an attack of hepatitis contracted in South Vietnam.

Daniel Ellsberg

Paul C. Warnke, former Assistant Secretary of Defense, International Security Affairs, has related that Ellsberg visited him in February and March, 1968, to discuss the Vietnam situation. At the time Ellsberg felt discouraged and pessimistic about what was about to happen in Vietnam, particularly regarding the Tet Offensive. At the time Ellsberg, however, did not appear to question United States objectives and made no irrational statements concerning United States involvement.

In March, 1968, Leslie H. Gelb, former Director of the Vietnam Task Force Study Group, informed Department of Defense investigators that Ellsberg was considered to be "dovish."

Since September, 1969, Ellsberg has talked to many persons about an obligation to speak out and inform the public concerning United States involvement in the Vietnam war. He reportedly feels that public officials should be doing more to bring about an end to the war and has indicated he is personally willing to go to jail for his cause.

Reports in the press and elsewhere stating that Ellsberg, in giving out the "McNamara Study" and participating in antiwar demonstrations, was influenced by his wife, Patricia Marx Ellsberg, have been discounted by Morton H. Halperin, a former associate in the Department of Defense. Mr. Halperin has stated that Daniel Ellsberg is the dominant intellect and personality and his wife has followed Ellsberg's lead in the transition from "hawk" to his present antiwar position.

Former associates at Rand Corporation have described Ellsberg as a "hawk" prior to going to Vietnam in 1965 with General Lansdale. Since his return from Vietnam in 1967, he has been obsessed with the Vietnam topic and it was felt by former associates that he has lost his sense of balance and has a distorted perspective.

An individual who visited Ellsberg in Thailand in 1967, at which time Ellsberg was hospitalized with hepatitis, stated that during that period Ellsberg was still enthusiastic about the United States role in Vietnam and felt that the United States must work harder to solidify its position and strengthen the South Vietnamese Government. This individual, currently with Rand Corporation, indicated that between that time and October, 1969, Ellsberg changed his position relative to the United States role in Vietnam and said this could be observed from Ellsberg's internal writings performed at Rand Corporation.

A female associate of Ellsberg, who had known him [REDACTED] stated that it was evident between May of 1968 and October of that year that Ellsberg's attitude regarding the war in Vietnam had changed from "hawk" to "dove." This person stated he changed his beliefs to nonviolence and talked against the war.

On January 14, 1971, Ellsberg appeared in United States District Court, Minneapolis, Minnesota, as a defense witness during a trial involving two individuals being tried for violation of the Selective Service Act. They were part of a group which broke into draft boards in Minnesota on July 11, 1970. During his testimony, he related he enlisted in the United States Marine Corps for two years in 1954 even though he had a "broken knee" and could have claimed a medical disability. He felt obligated to enlist since he had been deferred for three years during the Korean war to pursue his education. He testified that in 1965, while working for the Department of Defense, he had drafted a speech for the Secretary of Defense justifying and explaining mobilization orders which were contemplated in July, 1965. Since the mobilization did not come about, the speech was not delivered. At that time he resigned from the Department of Defense in order to go to Vietnam with the State Department so he could participate in the effort in that country. He further testified that he returned to the United States in 1967 and worked for the Rand Corporation until April, 1970, when he resigned in order to be able to speak freely to the public and to write freely. Ellsberg said he had not personally made a recommendation concerning the ending of the war to the administration. It had, however, been included among options he helped draft for the President. His testimony included the statement, "It was not until September, 1969, that I came to join my other colleagues in believing that it remained as the essential strategy we should follow." Ellsberg stated he felt the President should make a public commitment to totally evacuate United States troops from Vietnam as soon as possible.

Ellsberg testified that acts of nonviolence, as he interpreted them, by friends who were in prison led him to believe that he should consider changing his life. This meant doing things outside the rules of his professional life which had been involved entirely in speaking to the executive branch of the Government. He felt he had to abandon that career and tell the public what the acts of those people had meant to him.

NOTE:

El Paso determined from National Car Rental Agency that Ellsberg, when renting automobile 1/5/71, indicated place of contact in El Paso as "La Posta," a little known independent motel in that area. Investigation developed that Joan Baez, while visiting husband, stayed at "La Posta" and relatives of Joseph Israel Maizlish and Gordon Randall Kehler also stayed at "La Posta" when visiting these persons at Federal Correctional Institution (FCI). All three persons incarcerated for violation of Selective Service Act in that they refused to report for induction. El Paso failed to develop data re Ellsberg's visit to "La Posta" and gave no indication checking records at FCI to determine whether Ellsberg visited Maizlish or Kehler.

Minneapolis, 7/28/71.

Enclosed for your investigative assistance in this matter is one Xerox copy of an article which appeared in the 7/23-29/71 edition of the "Berkeley Barb," a New Left underground-type publication. The article concerns remarks made by Daniel Ellsberg in the Twin Cities area, apparently on 1/14/71. Ellsberg testified in United States District Court, Minneapolis, on behalf of two individuals charged with hindering and interfering with the administration of the Selective Service System.

Probability exists remarks attributed to Ellsberg in enclosed article were made during discussion at home of Attorney Kenneth Earl Tilsen at which about 40 or 50 antiwar sympathizers were reportedly present.

Note that interview of Ellsberg is attributed to the "Hundred Flowers," which is apparently another New Left underground-type publication in Minneapolis.

Separate instructions relating to investigation of "Hundred Flowers" have been furnished your office under separate cover.

To seek authority for interview of William H. McGlothlin, currently employed as a research psychologist on the staff of University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA). Teletype for Los Angeles attached.

We have received recurring reports during instant investigation of use of drugs by Daniel Ellsberg. [REDACTED] controlled occasions of drug use by Daniel Ellsberg occurred under supervision of William H. McGlothlin, who was conducting experiments in use of LSD and marijuana. McGlothlin was also reported to have told Ellsberg of a location in nearby Mexico where drugs were available and experiments were being carried on.

Bureau files contain no information regarding McGlothlin, whose current location has been pinned down by Los Angeles as on the staff of UCLA. Los Angeles has requested Bureau authority to interview him. Interview could produce substantive information of value if, in fact, Ellsberg's use of drugs was known to McGlothlin or could eliminate need for additional inquiry along this drug addiction line in instant investigation.

If interview of McGlothlin is approved, Los Angeles will be instructed to conduct same off campus of UCLA.

RECOMMENDATION;

That interview of McGlothlin be approved. If approved, attached teletype will be sent.

To summarize, for information, data received during the night from offices involved in our continuing investigation of the leak of classified information to "The New York Times."

William H. McGlothlin, research psychologist, University of California at Los Angeles, who was formerly employed at Rand Corporation from 1954 until 1967, acknowledged being acquainted with Ellsberg during his Rand employment. McGlothlin has a professional interest in LSD and marijuana and has conducted research regarding these matters for many years. In about 1962 or 1963, Ellsberg acknowledged having participated in an experiment with LSD and admitted having taken this drug on one other occasion. He knew nothing further concerning Ellsberg's use of drugs. McGlothlin recalled that upon Ellsberg's return from Vietnam (in 1967) he expressed the sentiment that the United States was mistaken in its Vietnam policy.

On 8/2/71, the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth District, Los Angeles, California, confirmed the contempt citation against Anthony Russo, Jr. Bail for Russo was revoked and he was ordered to surrender to the United States Marshal, Los Angeles, by 2 p. m., 8/4/71. It is anticipated Russo's attorneys will appeal to the Supreme Court and again request bail for Russo. Russo, when appearing before the previous session of the Grand Jury in Los Angeles, refused to testify regarding allegations that he may have witnessed Ellsberg's duplication of the classified documents involved in this matter.

[REDACTED] Council for a Livable World, Washington, D. C., stated he had no personal knowledge as to the identity of anyone offering copies of the "Pentagon papers" on Capitol Hill. It is noted previous investigation developed the fact that one [REDACTED] had made statements to this effect. [REDACTED] stated he did meet Ellsberg about four or five years ago in Santa Monica,

RE: MC LEK

California, having been introduced by [REDACTED] who was a Rand Corporation employee [REDACTED] recalled seeing Ellsberg again during the Spring of 1971 at a breakfast in Washington sponsored by the Business Executives Move for Vietnam Peace, an antiwar organization. Ellsberg spoke at this breakfast.

42 A car rental application filed by Ellsberg on 1/5/71 in El Paso, Texas, indicated he was staying at a motel named "La Posta." This has been described as a small independent motel and it is not well known even to El Paso residents. Investigation has developed that it has been utilized by Joan Baez Harris when visiting her husband, David Victor Harris, who was a prisoner at the Federal Correctional Institution (FCI), La Tuna, Texas. It has likewise been used by the relatives of Joseph Israel Maizlish and Gordon Randall Kehler, both incarcerated in the FCI. All three of these individuals were convicted for violations of the Selective Service Act in that they refused to serve in the United States armed forces. It was further noted that Ellsberg has stated that the nonviolent nature and example of Kehler had a great influence in the changing of his attitude from "hawk" to "dove." El Paso continuing inquiries regarding this.

Information has been developed that Hedrick Smith, a reporter of "The New York Times" who participated in the analysis of the "Pentagon papers," is currently in Beirut, Lebanon, awaiting a visa from the Soviet Union so that he may proceed to Moscow to become bureau chief for "The New York Times."

ACTION:

For information.

Investigation continues to receive intensive investigative attention and you will be advised of pertinent developments.

Pertinent portions of data herein will be included in weekly memorandum to the White House and will be furnished to the Attorney General, as well as the Assistant Attorney General, Internal Security Division.

[REDACTED] QUALIFIED SPEAKERS. THE SESSION FOR WHICH HE WAS RESPONSIBLE DEALT WITH MODERN METHODS OF CONFLICT RESOLUTION, DESCRIBED BY [REDACTED] AS THE DEVELOPING OF MATHEMATIC TOOLS TO ATTACK REAL PROBLEMS OR TO DEFINE THE SPECIFIC PROBLEM IN ORDER TO APPLY MATHEMATICS. THIS IS KNOWN AS "GAME THEORY" AND THE RAND CORPORATION HAS BEEN A LEADER IN THIS FIELD FOR YEARS, AND THE VIETNAM WAR HAS BEEN THE SUBJECT OF GAME THEORY APPLICATION.

[REDACTED] SOMETIME SHORTLY PRIOR TO LATE NINETEEN - SIXTYNINE HE READ AN ARTICLE BY DANIEL ELLSBERG ENTITLED "THE THEORY AND

ELLSBERG WAS AT FIRST UNABLE TO ATTEND DUE TO SCHEDULED TESTIMONY BEFORE A CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE, HOWEVER, DUE TO A CHANGE IN THE UNRECALLED COMMITTEE SCHEDULE ELLSBERG WAS ABLE TO ATTEND AT THE LAST MINUTE.

ELLBERG ARRIVED IN AFTERNOON BEFORE THE FIRST SESSION, EXACT DATE UNRECALLED AND [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] COULD NOT RECALL WHERE ELLSBERG ARRIVED FROM, BUT FELT IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN BERMUDA. ELLSBERG SPEECH TO THE SURPRISE [REDACTED] WAS A NON-MATHEMATICAL PRESENTATION, THE EXACT TOPIC OF WHICH HE COULD NOT RECALL, BUT FROM RECOLLECTION THE PRESENTATION DEALT WITH THE VIETNAM WAR AND VARIOUS DEVELOPMENTS [REDACTED] THAT FROM THE TEXT HE DID NOT GAIN THE IMPRESSION THAT THE COMMENTS WERE A BREACH OF SECURITY OR TAKEN FROM SECRET DOCUMENTS.

HE RECALLED ONE SPECIFIC COMMENT BY ELLSBERG WHICH MADE REFERENCE TO THE ADMINISTRATION DECISION TO BOMB NORTH VIETNAM, STATING: THAT IF ONE WERE ATTEMPTING TO PERSUADE SOMEONE TO DO SOMETHING: WHERE BOTH COOPERATION AND COMPETITION WERE POSSIBLE, ONE MUST FIRST KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT THE INDIVIDUAL OR GROUP WITH WHICH YOU ARE

DEALING, MAKING OBVIOUS REFERENCE TO HANOI. ELLSBERG MENTIONED SPECIFICALLY HOW SHOCKED HE WAS TO LEARN THAT THE PURPOSE OF THE BOMBING OF NORTH-VIETNAM WAS TO CONVINCE HANOI THAT THEIR POSITION WAS UNPROFITABLE, GOING ON TO SAY THAT THE LEADERS IN NORTH VIETNAM HAD GIVEN THEIR LIVES TO FIGHT COLONIALISM AND IT WOULD HAVE BEEN CONSIDERED DISHONEST AND A LOSS OF FACE TO SURRENDER TO THE PRESSURE OF BOMBING. AT THIS POINT ELLSBERG EITHER READ FROM A BOOK OR A DOCUMENT OR QUOTED SOMEONE, POSSIBLY A FRENCHMAN, WHICH RAISED THE QUESTION AS WHETHER THE U.S. MEMBERS OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL KNEW THE NAME OF EVEN ONE OF THE NORTH VIETNAMESE CENTRAL COMMITTEE. IT WAS [REDACTED] RECOLLECTION THAT ELLSBERG DID NOT MAKE A DEFINITE STATEMENT ONE WAY OR THE OTHER IN THIS REGARD, BUT SEEMED TO JUST THROW IT OUT AS A THOUGHT PROVOKING POSSIBILITY.

ACCORDING TO [REDACTED] ELLSBERG WAS WELL KNOWN AT THE MEETING SINCE IT WAS ATTENDED BY OTHER RAND PEOPLE AS WELL AS PEOPLE INVOLVED IN THE "GAME THEORY", AND HIS TALK WAS WELL RECEIVED.

[REDACTED] IT IS CUSTOMARY FOR SPEAKERS AT ORSA MEETINGS TO SUBMIT ABSTRACTS OF THEIR PRESENTATIONS WHICH ARE THEN PUBLISHED IN THE BULLETIN PRIOR TO THE MEETING.

HE, HOWEVER, DOES NOT KNOW WHETHER ELLSBERG SUBMITTED AN ABSTRACT BECAUSE OF HIS OFF AGAIN ON AGAIN UNCERTAINTY

OF BEING ABLE TO ATTEND. HE STATED IT IS NOT CUSTOMARY FOR SPEAKERS TO PROVIDE A WRITTEN TEXT, AND HE DID NOT KNOW ELLSBERG TO HAVE HAD OR PRESENTED SAME. HE FELT HOWEVER THAT THE COMMENTS WOULD PROBABLY HAVE BEEN PUBLISHED IN THE FORM OF A PAPER BY ELLSBERG PERHAPS LATER, BUT HE COULD NOT BE SURE. IN ORDER TO DETERMINE WHETHER ELLSBERG

42 SUBMITTED AN ABSTRACT OF HIS PRESENTATION IT WOULD BE NECESSARY TO REFER TO THE ORSA BULLETIN OF NINETEEN SIXTYNINE, USUALLY AVAILABLE IN UNIVERSITY LIBRARIES, CERTAINLY THE CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY, AND AS LAST RESORT THROUGH THE WAVERLY PRESS, BALTIMORE, MD., CARE OF NOVELL E. MILLER, III, ORSA BUSINESS MANAGER.

FOLLOWING THE ORSA MEETING ELLSBERG DEPARTED MIAMI, DESTINATION UNRECALLED, BUT [REDACTED] HAD THE IMPRESSION HE WAS TAKING A FEW DAYS LEAVE [REDACTED] HIS ASSOCIATION WITH ELLSBERG ON THIS OCCASION WAS PRIMARILY SOCIAL, DID NOT RELATE TO THE VIETNAM WAR, AND HE HAS NEITHER SEEN NOR TALKED TO ELLSBERG SINCE. HE STATED THAT FROM READING THE RECENT PUBLICITY HE GAINED THE IMPRESSION THAT ELLSBERG HAD CHANGED FROM A HAWK TO A DOVE WHICH HE ATTRIBUTED PROBABLY TO ELLSBERG'S VISIT TO VIETNAM LEARNING WHAT WAS POSSIBLE AND WHAT WAS NOT POSSIBLE RATHER THAN WHAT WAS DESIRABLE [REDACTED] HE HAS NO KNOWLEDGE CONCERNING ELLSBERG, HIS ACTIONS, OR OPINIONS

END PAGE FIVE

OTHER THAN THE PRESENTATION REFERRED TO ABOVE. HE DID STATE THAT HE GAINED THE IMPRESSION THAT ELLSBERG WAS RATHER ANXIOUS TO SPEAK AT THE ORSA MEETING IN ORDER TO HAVE AN INTELLIGENT, INTERESTED AND INFORMED AUDIENCE AND PERHAPS INFORM THEM ABOUT ASPECTS OF THE VIETNAM WAR, PERHAPS NOT GENERALLY KNOWN AND HE CLEARLY APPEARED TO HAVE A MESSAGE ABOUT ASPECTS NOT GENERALLY KNOWN BY THE PUBLIC.

[REDACTED] STILL HAS THE IMPRESSION THAT ELLSBERG WAS NOT EXPOSING CLASSIFIED MATERIAL IN HIS PRESENTATION [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] HE COULD NOT SAY HE WAS AWARE OF THE MC NAMARA STUDY PRIOR TO THE PUBLICITY, BUT MAY HAVE HEARD SOME REFERENCE TO IT DURING SOME SIX YEARS HE WORKED FOR THE AIR FORCE. HE STATED HE DID NOT PARTICIPATE IN ITS PREPARATION AND NEVER HAD ACCESS TO ANY PORTIONS OF IT OUTSIDE OF THE POSSIBILITY THAT HE MAY HAVE HAD ACCESS TO SOME DOCUMENTS WHICH LATER WERE INCORPORATED IN THE STUDY.

[REDACTED] THROUGH HIS PROFESSIONAL ASSOCIATES AND PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE HE WAS NOT AWARE OF ELLSBERG'S POSSESSION OF THE MC NAMARA STUDY OR PLANS TO EXPOSE SAME.
